HATCHING SEASON OPENS.

Over 6,000,000 Cod Eggs Received at Woods Hole Yesterday.

The winter hatching season of the Woods Hole fisheries of the bureau of fisheries opened with the receipt yesterday of over 6,000,000 cod eggs, which will be hatched at this station and released on the spawning grounds in the vicinity of Vineyard sound and Buzzard's bay. The U. S. S. Phalarope has arrived at Plymouth with a force of spawnmakers and the daily catch of the fleet of cod fishermen who make this point their headquarters during the winter season will be closely inspected by these experienced egg-collectors, and the mature eggs secured will be shipped to the Woods Hole station to be hatched. Superintendent E. K. Locke, formerly of this city, of that station has procured nearly 200 adult cod, which will spawn during the coming winter. These are confined in specially constructed cars, and are examined at intervals of two or three days, and the ripe eggs taken from the fish, fertilized and transferred to the hatchery.

Besides the above fish the superintendent has in his care 300 egg-bearing lobsters, which are being stored as an experiment at this station. The lobsters have been placed in the pools at the station and several have been sunk in cars at the bottom of Great harbor, and they are to be recaptured next spring and the eggs hatched with a view to ascertaining whether the eggs treated this way will yield as good or better results than the eggs procured during the summer months.

RECIPROCITY TREATY.

Canadian-American Joint High Committee May Consider the Matter.

A despatch from Washington says: It is not at all improbable that the Canadian-American joint high commission may be called together again for the purpose of considering the negotiations of a Canadian reciprocity treaty. This is one of the schemes in the mind of the administration at present, as this is considered to be the very best way to settle the reciprocity question.

Senator Fairbanks, who has been one of the most active workers of the commission, is at present in New York, where he is paying considerable attention to the question, and there is no doubt but what he is agitating another meeting of the commission, the first meeting not having resulted in any action toward the negotiation of the treaty.

It is also understood in Washington that Sir Wilfred Laurier favors another meeting of the commission, and would be pleased to have a call for another meeting issued soon.

Good Work

Sch. Maggie and May, Capt. Alex. McEachern, stocked $16,818 as the result of her two salt bank trips the past season, the crew sharing $543.50.

Considering the fact that Capt. McEachern started very late on his first trip, the record he has made is one of the very best and is in keeping with his fully established reputation which has stood for years as one of the top-notchers of the salt bank skippers of the Atlantic coast.

Good Fall Haddock Catch.

The Nantucket fishermen have had the best fall haddock catch in many years. The continuous northerly winds have enabled them to launch their dories from the south shore almost every day for some weeks, and as the fish have been very plentiful, the catches have averaged on some days as high as 300 fish to a boat. As the daily trips of the boat to the main land have not been interrupted by heavy weather, the fishermen have been able to get their catch to the market very quickly, and obtain good prices.

The fall codfishing off Seaconset, however, has not been as good as usual, but a better run is looked for next month.

HAVE MADE GOOD STOCKS.

Sch. Grayling High Line of Seining Fleet.

SCH. KINEO STOCKS OVER $22,000

Sch. Aloha's Stock Nearly Reaches Sch. Elector's.

Among the good season's works the leaders of the salt bank codfishing fleet, there is but one better than the record of sch. Aloha, Capt. John McInnis. Indeed Capt. McInnis is but very little behind the remarkable stock made by sch. Elector, Capt. Clayton Morrissey.

The Aloha made two trips, landing over half a million pounds of salt cod, and closed her season with the splendid sum of $18,315.41 to attest how well Capt. McInnis and his crew had worked. The vessel carried ten dories and all hands were sharemen, there being no hired men in the crew. On this fine stock the 22 men shared each the goodly sum of $347.44. Capt. McInnis will now fit the Aloha for a Newfoundland frozen trip. He is one of Gloucester's most noted codfishermen, smart in every way and his success is not to be wondered at, for at the bottom of it all is the fact that he works hard and uses good judgment.

The stock of sch. Elector was $18,535.06, so Capt. McInnis' stock is but $220 behind this remarkable record.

The high line honor of the mackerel seining fleet has been fairly won by Capt. Reuben Cameron of sch. Grayling, who as the result of mackerel landed has made the fine stock of $21,547, the crew profiting by their season's work to the extent of $475.18.

Capt. Cameron is too well known from New York to Newfoundland to need any newspaper introduction. His reputation as one of the greatest all around fishermen sailing from this port is well known. It is a reputation well earned and steadily lived up to, and "Capt. Reub." as most everybody calls him, has had lots of congratulations on his good fortune.

Right on the heels of Capt. Cameron comes the most noted fisherman of the Atlantic coast, or the Pacific coast either for that matter, Capt. Solomon Jacobs of sch. Victor, with a stock for the season of $20,000. Every body is so used to seeing Capt. Jacobs at the head or close up that his good work year after year is taken as a matter of course and people have come to expect it of him right along. Capt. Jacobs is still on deck and next year will find him out south as usual and if reports are correct he will be in command of a fine, big gasoline auxiliary schooner.

Another fine stock among the seiners, and one which is right up in the front rank, is that of $18,372 made by Capt. Ralph Webber of sch. Marguerite Haskins of this port, and on which the crew made the good share of $392.53. Capt. Webber is one of the young skippers of the fleet, who has come rapidly to the front during the past few years, his success being deservedly gained by steady hard work coupled with a good knowledge of the business.

Another of the front rank men of the mackerel seining fleet is the Nestor of them all, Capt. Joseph Smith of sch. Bertha and Pearl, who as usual has met with good success throughout the season and has stocked between $18,000 and $20,000. Although the oldest in point of service among the seining skippers, Capt. Smith is a young fellow when it comes to fishing, and his many friends hope that his strength of limb and sharp eyesight will continue to stand by him for years to come.

But the salt bankers and the mackerel catchers are not having all the big stock plans for when it comes to making money the Georges halibuters must be reckoned with. Georges halibuting is hard fishing and the skippers and men who engage in it must have a vast deal of experience, strong bodies and stout hearts. Hurry-up sets, quick trips and few days ashore is their motto from April to October, and then they go at something else. In this fleet this year, the vessels as a whole have done well and some have done remarkably well, among them sch. Kineo, Capt. John Stream, sch. Waldo L. Stream, Capt. Frank Stream, sch. Lelia E. Norwood, Capt. Alfred Johnson, sch. Volant, Capt. Oscar Benson, sch. Niagara, Capt. Augustus Swenson, and sch. Thalia, Capt. Ernest Engstrom.

Sch. Kineo, Capt. John Stream, has rolled up the magnificent stock of $22,341.87 and on this, his hustling crew has shared about $600 clear to a man. This fine stock and share stands for hard work and plenty of it and the exercise of much judgment. Capt. Stream is just the fellow to do both, and for many years his reputation as a hustling worker and master mariner of undoubted ability has been widespread. Capt. Stream, above all things, believes in hustling and to this as anything is due the high position which this popular citizen has made for himself in the ranks of the master mariners along the Atlantic coast. His fine craft will now be hauled up for the winter and he will fit out sch. Columbia for a frozen herring trip to Newfoundland.

HEAVY SNOW STORM.

Encountered at Sea by Fishing Vessels.

Captains Say They Never Experienced Worse.

All the incoming vessels, both at this port and at Boston, yesterday and today report a snow storm on Sunday night and Monday, which must have been most severe. A captain of one of the haddockers said that it was without doubt the heaviest snow storm he ever experienced on the water, and that during the heavy squalls it was impossible to see from the wheel forward to the fore-castle companionway. The fall of snow was accompanied by a heavy breeze of wind.

Capt. Albert Flygore of sch. Blanche, which arrived here yesterday afternoon from Bay of Islands, N. F., with a salt herring cargo, said that the snow storm, which he encountered this side of Cape Sable on Sunday night and Monday, was more severe than any he ever experienced in the dead of winter in all his going fishing. So severe was the snow storm that the Blanche was hove to for some time. The wind accompanying the fall of snow was very heavy and a savage sea was running.

ANOTHER GOOD ONE.

Capt. Lovitt Hines Among the Leaders as Usual.

Stocks Over $17,000 on Two Salt
Bank Trips.

As usual, the end of the season of the salt bank cod catchers finds Capt. Lovitt Hines right up among the leaders. In his new sch. Hazel R. Hines, he has, this year, made two trips, and on these he has rolled up the fine stock of $17,312.10.

Capt. Hines has long held the reputation of being one of the foremost master mariners in the salt bank codfishery, and those who have landed as many salt codfish as he are very scarce indeed. To add to this, Capt. Hines is an up-to-date business man and always has the happy faculty of selling his trip to good advantage.

This fine stock puts Capt. Hines right up among the leaders as usual, and his craft will now be hauled up for the winter.
